Memoriesontv 4 Crack Serial 11The Iraqi parliament has ratified the referendum on whether to allow troops from Kuwait and the United States to stay in the country, Foreign Minister Ibrahim al-Jaafari said on Monday. "I welcome the ratification by the Iraqi parliament to the agreement between Iraq and America on the creation of an independent (Kurdish) state," Jaafari told a press conference in Baghdad. "We look forward to Iraq's entering into the stage of implementation of this agreement." The White House said on Tuesday that President Barack Obama has "every expectation" that the agreement will be implemented. The agreement, signed last week in Switzerland, gives sovereignty to the territory held by the Iraqi Kurds, who hold a referendum on September 25 on whether to join the regional independent state of Kurdistan in the north. Iraqi Prime Minister Nuri al-Maliki has been pressing hard for the deal, saying that to do otherwise would mean the collapse of Iraq. His political bloc, the largest in parliament, had enough votes in February to stop the agreement, but it fell short of a two-thirds majority needed to override the referendum results. The deal is likely to sharply increase tensions between Washington and Baghdad, as the United States is already providing arms to the autonomous Kurdistan Regional Government. Jaafari also spoke about the recent talks between the Iraqi and Palestinian governments in Abu Dhabi on the situation in Syria, and the Middle East peace process. "Iraq sends condolences to the Palestinian people to the loss of life and loss of material," he said, adding that "it condemns Israel's aggression and acts against the Palestinian people". Elsewhere in the region, Pakistan on Monday urged the United States to end its military presence in Afghanistan and warned that its support to Pakistan over insurgents could hurt regional security and stability. "The United States may have good intentions," said Foreign Minister Hina Rabbani Khar, "but the consequences of its presence may be dire for the interests of the region". Pakistan has been a "key player" in the United States' strategy to contain Afghanistan's Taliban insurgency, she said. She warned the United States not to jeopardise regional stability by supporting "terrorist groups" in Pakistan. Washington and Islamabad have traditionally been close allies in
