Users can also look up related tutorials and topics to offer advice for other people. The Adobe Help Forums are an open community forum where online users can ask questions and seek help. Visit www.photoshop.com/support. Installing Photoshop CS6 The installation process for Photoshop Creative Suite 6 is straightforward. It can be done in several ways, including using the disc that came with the software, a serial number, or an Internet download. Installing the Disc version The first thing to do is insert the Photoshop CS6 disc. The disc is usually provided with the software. The installation path varies by operating system, but just look for the installer on the CD and follow the instructions. If you need help, check out the YouTube link listed at the end of this section. (Alternatively, you can visit www.adobe.com/support/photoshop/g6/installation.html.) If the disk is not included with your software or is damaged, the CD you need can be purchased at www.adobe.com/store/photoshop. Installing the Serial number version If you prefer to have the software on the Internet, you can download the installer from www.adobe.com/photoshop/installer. Save it to your hard drive and run it to install the software. If you don't have your serial number handy, visit www.adobe.com/support/photoshop/serialnumber.html for a link to download it. Installing through the Internet version The third option for installing Photoshop Creative Suite 6 is through the Internet. Adobe provides an on-demand installation method that offers several installation options. Visit www.adobe.com/support/photoshop/g6/install.html for details. You also have the option to receive an activation code instead of a serial number. Contact your Adobe representative or visit www.adobe.com/support/photoshop/g6/activate.html for more

Q: OS X 10.8 does not boot from SSD I bought the new Mac mini with a 500GB SSD. It came with Snow Leopard. The first thing I did was to install Lion on it and then I have upgraded it to Mountain Lion. I've had issues with Mountain Lion not booting on startup so I've formatted it and have been trying to install Mavericks on it but it won't boot. I've tried booting with it connected to a drive and disconnected and no difference. I've tried booting on the drive connected and disconnected and no difference. I've tried booting with different combinations of F keys pressed on boot and with and without boot from external drive, didn't work. Nothing I've tried is getting me to any sort of a screen, it boots without it and that is it. After a while it just restarts, same process. To make matters even better, Snow Leopard is taking forever to load the hard drive on boot. I'm guessing it's because Lion/Mountain Lion are taking up all the space on the hard drive. I tried to format the hard drive and clean and repair permissions but all it seems to do is take about 5 hours to boot. Am I doing something wrong? Do I have to change something in the BIOS or something, or what? UPDATE: After rebooting into boot CD, everything looks ok. I can access the hard drive, however, when I try to reformat the hard drive and repair permissions it just freezes. When I try to wipe the drive it says I'm out of space. A: I contacted Apple support, and they said there is only one way to fix this issue and it's to format the disk through the OS. When it asks you if you want to continue/reinstall/etc etc, just click on the format option and it should just work fine. So that's not actually an answer but I figured I'd put it up here so if anybody else has this problem they know what's going on. I got a refund because I'm not going to fix the hard drive and it's not worth my time either. // +build!ignore_autogenerated /* Copyright 2018 The Kubernetes Authors.
