conjunction with a Z-plasty nail, and the placement of cancellous bone screws to the patella, nail protrusion or penetration through the patellar cartilage could be avoided. Clinical and radiological results were excellent. Q: Is it possible to run a service that is on a different machine than your Core Data instance? I have a screen that runs a background service, and it uses the core data store on my main app to make sure that information is kept consistent. However, right now, there is an instance of my application being run on my (iphone) simulator (no iphone yet). Should I be able to have my service run independently on the computer that the simulator is being run on? I have already moved the core data store to my iPhone, so its pretty easy. Thanks. A: Yes, you should be able to do that. You have to make sure that you keep some communication between the service (that may use the simulator) and the iPhone/iPad application. That is, I suggest to have something in common between the service and your core data store, which provides the identifier of the simulator and which is available in both. Medium-sized enterprises in the construction industry will be at a disadvantage if the Government raises the minimum wage in line with EU directives, as they will need more than four years to adjust their workforce, a representative of the sector has claimed. In a meeting with Fáilte Ireland representatives, Christopher Lundon, Managing Director of Lundon Construction, said the Government needs to be open to different scenarios – and a different type of construction industry – in order 3e33713323
