Please, if you know me, you know I am trying to stick to a minimalist approach as my first step on the way to a more simple holiday. I asked my sister if she had any snowman cookies she could share with me. She told me that she has been making them for months and has had them on her grocery list. I was really excited to get this recipe and make some for my family. They were soooo good! I was also pleased with how they looked too...even though they kept sliding off the tray! I used Christmas Pudding fillings so they looked like Christmas trees. I also made a few snowman cookies to go with them. Cranberry and Dark Chocolate Snowman Cookies Makes 36-40 1 box of chocolate cookies (I used Pepperidge farm) 1/2 cup of dried cranberries 1/2 cup of butter (melted) 1/4 cup of chocolate chips In a medium bowl stir together the chocolate chips, cranberries and butter. Drop by spoonfuls on to a baking tray lined with wax paper. Freeze until hard. While the chocolate is freezing, make a lining that will go on the bottom of the baking tray. This is to help keep the cookies from sliding off while you are baking them. Once the chocolate is hard, use a cookie cutter to cut the cookies. Then you will make a mixture of egg white and water. I had so much fun making these and bringing them to my friends' Christmas parties. The chocolate filling made them taste even better to me. I know they will be a hit too. If you happen to make these, be sure to snap a picture and share them with me on my facebook page. December 2nd was the date that I decided it was time to
